If satellite radio was free then make all the changes you want!
However, satellite radio is a paid service. The FCC should not be involved at all. Local radio markets AM/FM have lost the local feel. They no longer cater to a local audience. Most radio stations are owned by one entity and control what you listen too. The problem is not satellite radio, the true problem is that in the last three years laws have been changed that give more power to one entity to own as many radio stations as they can purchase. XM weather stations is not what the NAB is after, it is your freedom to listen to what ever you want.

They control the media, they control what you listen too!
